

Aymeric Pellé <aymeric.pelle@gmail.com>

Congratulations

1 message

Aymeric Pellé <aymeric.pelle@gmail.com>

19 mai 2018 à 01:49

À : vmorris@smith.edu

Dear Vivian,

I am writing to congratulate you for getting graduated.
I didn't see you often and I don't know you, but still,
I want to congratulate you for finishing college and
I hope you found a good graduate school to continue your studies.

I want to use this email also to tell you that I took time to reflect of my behaviour during the semester.
So, I want to apology to you for what happened months ago, and I hope you enjoyed this semester even though I made you uncomfortable.
You have always been nice and I regret to have made you feel bad.

I would like you to forward my apologies to your friend who worked with you at the Campus Center Café. I know that I scared her in December.
I have nothing against her, and I regret how I behaved with her.
(I didn't feel well and I badly reacted. I realized just after what I've done, and I wanted to say I was sorry.
I saw her several times during February, unfortunately I was too embarrassed to apology to her.)

I don't know you, and I wish I had another occasion to get to know you.
Of course, I perfectly understand if you don't wish the same,
and I understand that it can be inappropriate to tell you that, particularly now.
At least, I have apologized and I told you sincerely what I think.

Congratulations again for getting graduated.
I know that the graduation is an important and festive moment in your life, so:
Enjoy the Commencement, have fun, make good memories of this event! :)
And in all case, I wish you the best for the future.

Best regards,
Aymeric